

Translation Review

Translation Review is a peer-reviewed journal committed to publishing the best new scholarship on all aspects of literary translation studies. Each issue highlights a translator in an interview and features articles and essays on the history, practice, and theory of translation, as well as translations of contemporary international writers into English.

Please see these instructions for authors.

In addition to the information for authors at the link above, please note the following instructions for translations: a short essay introducing the author and contextualizing the text and/or a brief essay detailing the reconstruction of the translation process should accompany the manuscript. We will consider submissions of translations of short stories, individual chapters of books, or a selection of 5-10 poems. Creative submissions must also include documentation of permission to translate and publish.

We are very flexible as to word count and will consider manuscripts of 1000-7000 words in length.

Please submit your manuscript here. (ScholarOne: <https://mc.manuscriptcentral.com/translationreview>)

Translation Review is published three times a year: April, August, and November.

You may address any questions to Shelby Vincent, Managing Editor at this email address: translation.review@utdallas.edu